Dear Campbell Music Students and Parents,

We hope this note finds you healthy and well! Our hearts are heavy because we miss you. We miss the connections, the smiles, the hugs, and the laughter. We miss the hard work you have done to achieve so much this year, and we miss the celebration of that hard work in concerts, festivals and our wonderful music tours.

Unlike many other subject areas, our music classes are dependent on the collective unit. Each individual makes a positive contribution to the entire unit. That is the joy of making music in a choral and/or band setting. Every person makes an important contribution to the success of the ensemble and together we celebrate that success.

Therefore, we will be offering a variety of individual and group supplemental learning opportunities online for those who choose to do so to help you grow as choral and band musicians before we meet again in person.

Most importantly, we recognize the value of making music as a way to support your mental and physical well being especially during this time of social isolation. We hope that the opportunities we will be providing will serve you well as we all navigate through this "new normal" together and allow us to stay connected and support each other in a virtual sense.

For All Campbell Music Students – we will be offering the following opportunities:

1. Google Classroom – we will continue to use this to post videos, and supplemental resources.
2. Remind – we will continue to use Remind as the primary way for us to send short notes.
3. Video Conferencing – We hope to use video conferencing as a way of connecting visually with you both individually and as a group. Further details about how to connect via Video Conferencing will be posted on Google Classroom.
